Dear Dorothy:

Thank you for your letter of November 20 informing me about your meeting with Congressman Rodino and Mr. Cline. I am sure that your discussions served the cause of progress toward eventual favorable consideration of the Rodino Bill, the passage of which we are all so interested in. It does appear, however, that we still have a lot of work ahead of us before all obstacles to passage are removed.

25X1 [redacted] has not yet passed along to me the information you referred to regarding what he had learned concerning Congressman Feighan's negative attitude. No doubt the reason is that he has been away from the office a good deal and very emotionally disturbed over the sad death of his mother about a week ago. I will talk to him in the near future at his convenience regarding what he knows concerning Congressman Feighan's attitude.

I hope to see Mr. Cline not later than early January and to arrange for discussions with Sub-committee members. You may be assured that I will do everything reasonable and possible to get favorable consideration of the bill. Meanwhile, your keeping Mr. Ott and me informed of all developments from your side will be most helpful in coordinating our efforts.

With warm regards,

Sincerely,

C. Rodney Smith
